W. BUCKLE, at his CIRCULATING LIBRARY,

No. 167, opposite the George-Inn.

(Price 8d.)

THE PRINTER'S ADDRESS.

IT having been suggested to the Printer of the following pages that a CHELTENHAM DIRECTORY was much wanted by the COMPANY resorting thither, he has collected the best materials in his power for that purpose, and arranged them in what appeared to him the most eligible method.

If any of the Inhabitants are omitted, or improperly inserted, he hopes they will impute it to the real cause, his want of information, and not to any disrespect, as he would be extremely sorry to give offence to any individual of a Town to which his thanks are due for repeated favors.

Should the Sale prove adequate to the expence, he proposes publishing a Directory Annually, and will be thankful to any Person, who will give him hints for improvement, or set him right where he has committed an error.

N. B. As Cheltenham has but One principal Street, and many good Lodging Houses which stand out of that street, are situate in places that have no particular Name, the Printer has deviated from the usual alphabetical mode of publishing Directories.—He has begun at the top of the Street on the North-side, and when he came to any turning of that street he has taken in the Houses which such turning led to, and then turned to the street again, pursuing the same mode coming up the South-side the street.

DESCRIPTION
CHELTENHAM.

CHELTENHAM is an ancient Town in GLOUCESTERSHIRE, distant about 92 miles West of London, 10 from the City of Gloucester, 9 from the Borough of Tewkesbury, 7 from Winchcomb, and lies in the Hundred of the same name; it derives its Name from the river CHELT, which rises in the adjacent parish of Dowdefwell, and empties itself into the Severn at Wainload's Bridge; it runs near the town on the south-side, and parts the town from the Well, over which is a small draw-bridge, the river being a waggon road from Gallipot, &c. to the town.

Cheltenham is pleasantly situated, in a healthy and fertile valley, in that extensive and delightful Vale of Evesham, (which is by some Writers called "GLOUCESTER VALE," being near that City;) is near a mile in length, the Air is pure and serene.

This town has been greatly enlarged and improved within these few years by the addition of many elegant and commodious new buildings erected in the principal street, and its environs, which from the increase of company resorting thither for the benefit of its excellent Waters, are generally let during the season, and some by the year.

From the First of June, to the First of October is the full Season, in the Spring and Autumn the Lodgings are Let at half Price.

There is no particular manufactory in the place and but little trade in the Winter; the chief dependence of the inhabitants is on their Lodgings, and the business that is done with the Nobility and Gentry that resort here.—Exclusive of the residents whose names are inserted in this directory, there are several tradesmen from London, Bath, &c. that open shops during the Season.

The church stands in the middle of the town, in the form of a cross, has a tower, with a set of eight musical bells, a lofty steeple, and a gilt weather cock on the top; there is an eight day clock in the tower, and a large handsome dial plate on the south-side, by which you may see on the Well-walk the time of the Day.

Formerly the water run thro' the middle of the street; but it is now paved on each side, and lighted according to act of parliament passed a few years since.

The market day is on Thursday, indeed the country people bring flesh, fish, poultry, &c. &c. every day during the season, so that the town is well supplied.

There are five fairs held annually, for cattle and horses, viz., the first, the second Thursday in April, Holy Thursday, August 5, noted for Lambs, the second Thursday in September for cheese, &c. and the Third Thursday in December, besides two statute fairs for hiring servants, on the Thursday before Old Michaelmas-day, and the Thursday after.

BALL ROOMS.

There are two very spacious handsome ball Rooms, called the Upper and Lower Rooms, kept by MR. ROOKE, and are open every evening during the season alternately

BALL NIGHTS,

MONDAYS AND FRIDAYS.

CARDS,

Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

THE THEATRE.

Is very neat and commodious, having two rows of boxes all round, holds between £40 and £50. MR. WATSON, the proprietor, has in general a very good company, which thro' the Winter performs at his other theatres, in Worcester, Hereford, Gloucester, Stourbridge, Coventry, Leicester, Cirencester, &c. every second year.

Some of the first performers at London, and Bath are occasionally engaged for the Cheltenham theatre; Mrs. Siddons, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Martyr, Miss Wallis, Mrs. Mills, Miss Chapman, Messrs. Quick, Bannister, Holman, Murray, Russell, Corey, &c. have repeatedly appeared here, and the musical talents of Kelly and Crouch, are in the highest estimation, and most liberally rewarded every season by the visitors.

DAYS OF PLAYING.

Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

The alms-houses are endowed for three poor men and three women, besides several other charities belonging to the town.

Sunday schools were established here in 1787, by a voluntary subscription of the Inhabitants and its environs, and in the season a Sermon is annually preached for the benefit of the Children.

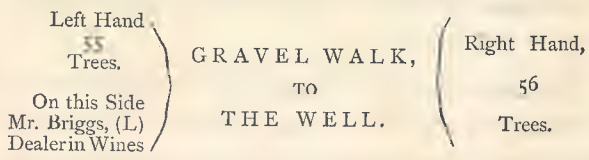

The First Troop of Gloucestershire Yeomanry Cavalry, was embodied here in the year 1795, P. Snell, Esq., Major Commandant.

And a Company of Volunteer Infantry in the year 1798, W. Hicks, Esq., Captain.

On the left hand side of the pump is a handsome park house for the company to walk in on the right hand is an enclosure for mules, in which a hand plays during the season from eight to ten in the morning; at the end of the promenade are Mrs. Poy's Apartments, who has been a company near 30 years. There are five very neat gravel walks about the top with trees

CHELTENHAM WELL.

THE WELL is about a quarter of a mile from the town, to which is a pleasant foot way, and a good coach road. The foot way thro' the church-yard, is a pleasant neat walk, between two rows of trees formed into an alcove, from thence thro' a serpentine path, to a pleasant field, called Church Meadow, at the end of which a small draw-bridge leads to the Well, by a noble promenade, between two rows of tall elm trees.

between 60 and 70 feet high, and have been planted as many years, (when the walk was first made) at the top of a square court in which the pump appears under a dome, with a sun dial on top, through an airy and neat arch-way with two posterns, supported by pillars, on each an egg urn, at the top of which is a Pigeon, as report says, the first discoverors of this salubrious water, in the beginning of the last Century.

On the left hand side of the pump, is a handsome long room for the company to walk in, on the right hand is an orchestra for music, in which a band plays during the season, from eight to ten in the morning; at the end of the posterns are Mrs. Forty's Apartments, who has been a pumper near 30 years.

There are two very neat gravel walks above the Spa with trees on each side; at the top of these walks, is Grove Cottage, the residence of S. H. Myers, Esq.

The coach road is down St. George's Place, and over an arch brick bridge, thro' a pleasant orchard, on the left hand leads to the Well, and Grove Cottage; on the right hand is the road to Bay's Hill Lodge, the seat of the Earl of FAUCONBERG, which in the year 1788, was honored by the residence of their MAJESTIES, the Princess ROYAL, Princess AUGUSTA, and Princess ELIZABETH, from July 12, to August 16; during which period His Royal Highness the Duke of York paid a visit to their Majesties.

In a field on this side the Earl's Lodge, is the Royal Spa, a Well sunk by His Majesty's order, from which the Salts are made; and in time of scarcity of water at the mother well, the Company resort to this, so that there is now no want of Water.

RIDES, ABOUT CHELTENHAM.

Up Winchcomb Street, to Prestbury, at which place is the GROTTO, for Company to drink Tea, &c., kept by Mr. ROOKE; from thence to Southam, Cleve, Winchcomb, Sudley Castle, &c.

The turnpike gate at the top of the town (being the London Road) leads to Charlton Kings, Dowdefwell, Frog-mill, &c.

Turning on the right hand from the said gate, is the road to Birdlip, where Mr. RICHARD DANCER, at the Black Horfe, has erected in his garden, a neat Summer House, for the reception of the Company to Drink Tea, and if they choose, to Dine, by sending their own provisions, may have them dresed at any hour ordered; Birdlip is on the road to Painswick, Stroud, Bath, &c.

Thro' the turnpike gate at the bottom of the town is the road to Gloucester, Tewkesbury, Worcester, &c., &c.
