PREFACE.

THE Publisher issues the present Volume conscious that no trouble or expense has been spared by the Editor or himself to make it a reliable work.

In a town of such frequent changes, it is impossible to secure perfect accuracy, but he trusts, by his new system of issuing annually, aided by the ever welcome co-operation and assistance of the public, to attain as near as possible that end.

He returns thanks to those gentry and public who favoured him by promptly filling up the forms sent round, and would beg to solicit the same kindness on future occasions.

Suggestions for the improvement of this work will be gladly received.

396, High Street, Cheltenham.

Gloucester, an ancient city and county in itself, is the seat of a bishopric and capital of Gloucestershire, situated locally in the hundred of Dudstone and Kings Barton; it is distant 114 miles from London, via Great Western Railway, and nine miles south-west from Cheltenham.

The modern part of the city occupies a pleasant situation on an eminence on the banks of the Severn, and it has an easy descent every way towards the suburbs from the Cross, where the principal streets intersect each other at right angles, as in most cities of Roman origin. The view of the city has an air of opulence, that is fully realized by a closer inspection, when the fine cathedral, numerous churches, public buildings, elegant mansions, good private residences, handsome shops, trading establishments, and extensive warehouses and docks are visited.

This city is one of the most ancient in England, and the Iberians, who named it Glevum, made a settlement here; the ancient Britons called it, Caer Glow. When the Romans arrived, it became a strongly fortified military station, that the Silures, a powerful Iberian people, who occupied the western side of the Severn, might be effectually resisted. It was one of the cities which formed part of the kingdom of the Middle Angles or Mercia, in 584 and it was a post of importance, being situated on the banks of the navigable river Severn. The beauty and situation of this ancient stronghold were soon appreciated by the Normans, for the Conqueror often held his court and spent his festive season here in the company of many of the nobles and clergy of the nation. The Empress Maude took refuge here in 1141, on her escape from Devizes Castle, and this city took part with her when she endeavoured to take the crown from the usurper Stephen. Here in 1216, Henry III., then ten years old, was crowned. Parliaments have been held there—once in 1378 by Richard II., and another in 1407 by Henry IV. Richard III., in 1483, after his coronation, came to this city and thence issued the order for the murder of his two nephews. In the time of the Civil Wars Gloucester early declared for the Parliament, and resolved to defend the place when summoned to surrender on the 10th August, 1643, and though the King made use of every effort to reduce the city, he was successfully resisted, James II., visited Gloucester in 1687, George III., in 1788, George IV., when Prince of Wales in 1807, and her present Majesty, when Princess Victoria, abode one night at the late Kings's Head Hotel, which stood then in Westgate-street

The Cathedral is a magnificent structure, and gives fine examples of various styles of Saxon, Norman, and English Church Architecture. Formerly this Cathedral Church was a Benedictine convent, dedicated to St. Peter, but at the dissolution of the abbey by Henry VIII., in 1541, it was founded as a cathedral, and consecrated to the Holy and Undivided Trinity, and made the see of a bishop; now, however, it is united to that of Bristol. This cathedral stands in, and occupies one side of College-green; it is 421 feet long by 144 feet wide, built on the site of a former monastery, which was destroyed by fire 1088, part of the present edifice, it is supposed, was built in 1089, but it was not completed until some time in the fifteenth century. The entire shell of this structure it is thought was erected by the Saxons, but altered and cut about by the Normans and their successors—therefore it exhibits several various styles, from the period of the Norman accession down to our own times. Upon entering the cathedral by the great western door, the whole length of the nave appears to the view, the aisles are separated from it by fourteen large circular pillars, each about 21 feet in circumference. The choir is a very fine specimen of the perpendicular style, extending to the first column in the nave. The tower is over the centre of the choir, and from the ground to the top of the pinnacles, is 225 feet high. The transept presents some excellent specimens of the Early Norman style. The “Ladye Chapel,” in a line with the choir, is entered under a richly ornamented arch, and is judiciously attached to the choir, so that the light from the great east window is not much obstructed. This cathedral for many years, has suffered much from neglect and great dilapidation. Recently very considerable efforts have been made to remedy this neglect. The restoration already effected is very extensive, including the interior of the nave, its north and south aisles, the exterior of the west end of the nave, the north and south cleristories, and an entirely new roof to the north aisles. These and many other parts have been beautifully restored. The expenses of these external and internal repairs is calculated at £45,000.

The Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol comprises the county of Gloucester, the Deaneries of Malmesbury, Cricklade, in Wiltshire, the city of Bristol, and the parishes of Bedminster and Abbots Leigh, in Somerset, and is divided into two Archdeaconries, Gloucester and Bristol, and 18 deaneries containing 459 benefices, and 1,000,503 acres.

The King's or College School, near the cathedral, was founded by Henry VIII. It is maintained by the Dean and Chapter, by whom the head and second masters are appointed. It is not free, but open to all who desire a first-class education.

The Crypt Grammar School was founded in 1539, by Alderman John Cooke, of Gloucester.

The Blue Coat Hospital, Eastgate-street, was founded by Sir Thomas Rich, in 1166.

The Gloucester Poor School, Northgate-street, was opened in 1813, for 200 boys.

There is a National school in the London-road, British schools in Hampden-place; there are schools on the National system connected with the several churches in the city. The Industrial Ragged school is in Deacon-street. Sunday schools were originated and put into practical operation by Mr. Raikes, a printer, an intelligent and philanthropic gentleman of the city, in the year 1781.

The County Gaol, built in 1791, at a cost of £35,000, stands in the north hamlet, on the site of the old castle. It is a penitentiary as well as a separate prison. It was erected on a plan suggested by Howard.

The Docks.—Gloucester possesses a command of much inland navigation, and employs a large number of boat and barge men, it has been an inland port for centuries, but the Severn was not navigable for large vessels. Therefore the Gloucester and Berkeley Ship Canal was constructed; this canal extends 17 miles on a dead level, and terminates in two commodious docks, surrounded by extensive wharves, and lofty and roomy warehouses. The rails of the Midland and Great Western Railway Companies are laid to the dock side. There are two spacious dry docks, and extensive slips for the construction of vessels of large tonnage. Gloucester has a considerable foreign trade, particularly with the Baltic. It imports largely corn, timber, wines, and spirits: and exports iron, salt, malt, coal, culm, bricks, and pottery.

Kemerton is a village and parish 11 miles from Cheltenham. It is in the eastern division of the county, in the lower division of the hundred of Tewkesbury, in the rural Deanery of Campden, in the Archdeaconry of Gloucester, and in the Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol. The direct way to it is by the Evesham road, or by the Midland railway to Ashchurch, 3 miles from Kemerton. St. Nicholas's church is a fine edifice in the Decorated style, and consists of nave, aisles, chancel, and porch, rebuilt in 1847; the old square tower contains six bells and a clock. The interior of this church is highly decorated, and has a few modern mural tablets, formerly in the chancel, but at its restoration removed to the north aisle. The living, a rectory, with residence, values £600 per annum. Rector, the Ven. Thomas Thorp, B.D., Archdeacon of Bristol. There is a National school for boys and girls, and an infant school. The Roman Catholics have a chapel and school here. The Wesleyans have a chapel in this place. An ancient Roman camp, surrounded by a deep trench, is found on the summit of Bredon Hill; at a somewhat lower level is a piece of ground evidently intended for military purposes. The lord of the manor is the Rev. John Hopton, of Canon Frome, Herefordshire. Area, 1,627 acres. Population, 559.

Leckhampton is a parish partly in the borough and wholly in the union of Cheltenham. The original village is distant about three miles (which is most easily got at from the Bath road) from Cheltenham, of which it now forms one of the most important suburbs. The population is reckoned at about 2,800, and the area occupies some 1,330 acres, in the Deanery of Winchcomb, Archdeaconry of Gloucester, Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, hundred of Cheltenham. The rectory is in the patronage of the Rev. Charles Brandon Trye, M.A., J.P., who is also lord of the manor, chairman of the Leckhampton Local Board, and chairman of the Board of Guardians of the Cheltenham Union; it is valued at £400 per annum, with residence.

The Church is an ancient edifice, dedicated to St. Peter, consisting of nave, chancel, north and south aisles, and porch, with a tower, surmounted by a spire, containing a peal of six bells. The oldest part of the structure dates from the early part of the fifteenth century. Within the sacred edifice is a beautiful tablet of white marble, surmounted with a globe and a ship sailing round it, erected to the memory of the last male descendant of Drake, the circumnavigator of the globe. Formerly the living was in the possession of the Norwoods, a family of historic interest, one of whom, a Colonel Norwood, sacrificed his life and property on behalf of the ill-fated Charles—to Dr. Norwood, a handsome monument was built in Gloucester Cathedral. The church, dedicated to St. Philip and St. James, was built about thirty years ago, in the incumbency of the Rev. William Henry Hutchinson, M.A. A small Baptist chapel is found in Leckhampton. There are two National schools, one in each church district. The hills in the neighbourhood rise to the height of 925 feet above the level of the sea; from thence we are gratified by a beautiful prospect of the vale, extending from Worcestershire bounded by the Shropshire and Malvern hills on one side, and the Somersetshire on the other. In the front, Gloucester, Tewkesbury, and Upton, appear with the majestic meandering Severn.

“The village stream swelled to a river,
And the river was a kingdom's wealth.”

Bounding the horizon in the far distance, may be seen on the clear day, the Welsh Mountains.

Leigh, a village and parish, includes the hamlet of Evington. It is five and a half miles north west from Cheltenham; is in the union and county court district of Tewkesbury, in the eastern division of the county, lower division of the hundred of Deerhurst, in the rural Deanery of Winchcomb, Archdeaconry of Gloucester, and Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol. The direct route is by the Tewkesbury road to Combe Hill, thence turn to the left. The population number 395; area, 1,403 acres. The canal from the Severn to Coombe Hill runs through the lower meadows of the parish, which are subject to frequent inundations. The church, an edifice of some interest, has recently been much improved and restored; it consists of chancel, nave, and a small cross aisle on the south side; an embattled tower at the west end contains five bells; on the exterior of the walls are a number of very ancient tablets. The date of the register is from 1570. The living is a vicarage of the annual value of £260, with good residence, and is in the gift of the Lord Chancellor. Vicar, the Rev. John Southgate Austin, A.M. There is a National school, erected in 1862. The manorial

North Cerney is a village and parish in Cirencester Union, containing 4,026 acres, and having a population of about 688 souls, in the hundred of Rapsgate, Deanery of Cirencester, Archdeaconry of Bristol, Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol. It is about 11 miles from Cheltenham, on the Cirencester road. From remains which at one time and another have been found, North Cerney is believed to have been a Roman station. The church is a cruciform structure, dedicated to All Saints, the architecture representing both the Norman and the Gothic styles: it has a tower and six bells. A sum of £23 per annum is the income of a bequest left for the repair of the church. A National school exists here for children of both sexes. Woodmancote and Calmsden are small hamlets of this parish, the latter about two miles east, near the old Roman passway.

Prestbury is a parish in Cheltenham Union, to which it sends two Guardians, it is situated a mile and a half from Cheltenham, and contains 1,373 inhabitants, with 3,022 acres; in the Deanery of Winchcomb, Archdeaconry of Gloucester, Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, hundred of Deerhurst, East Gloucestershire. Formerly an important market town: it was burnt down in Henry the Seventh's reign. The name indicates that it was formerly a dwelling place for Priests, and local historians tell us a college for their education once existed here. The vicarage, in the incumbency of the Rev. J. Edwards, Jun., M.A., is valued at £230 per annum, with residence, and 23 acres of glebe land, and is in the patronage of the Rev. John Edwards, M.A., J.P. The church is an ancient gothic edifice, dedicated to St. Mary, of the style of the thirteenth and fifteenth centuries, and contains nave, chancel, north and south aisles, with a high embattled tower, and a peal of six bells, and some handsome mural tablets to the De la Bere, Capel, and other families; also some beautiful stained glass windows. There is a National school for children of both sexes, as well as a very good Middle Class school for boys. The poor have charitable bequests, and an Alms House was given in 1720, by Anne Goodrich. A very pretty little Chapel, built of coloured bricks, with spire, was opened here on the 16th of May, 1866, by the Independents: it will seat about 250. The principal Inn is the King's Arms, near to which is the Post Office, kept by Mr. T. Liddiard.

Swindon is a parish near Cheltenham, containing about 230 inhabitants and 721 acres; in the Deanery and Archdeaconry of Gloucester, Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, hundred of Cheltenham. It is about two miles from Cheltenham, and is reached by turning out of the Tewkesbury road before arriving at the High-street station of the Great Western Railway, down any of the streets on the right leading to Maud's Elm, and then pursuing your course to the first or second turning on the right, either of which lead to the village. The road leading to the church is very prettily adorned with a fine avenue of trees, and the sacred edifice itself, situated as it is on an elevated spot, commanding a fine view of the surrounding country, is well worthy of a visit.

The church is in the Norman and Early English styles, dedicated to Saint Lawrence, having an hexagonal tower of unequal sides containing four bells. The rectory is in the incumbency of the Rev.

It is valued at £496 per annum, including residence, and 33 acres of glebe land; in the patronage of John Surman Surman, Esq. There is a National school for children of both sexes, under the management of the Rector. There are charitable bequests for the poor, producing about £18 per annum. Hugh S. Stratford, Esq., is the lord of the manor, who with John Surman Surman, Esq., are the principal landowners.

Tewkesbury is an ancient borough market town and parish, the principal town in the Union from which it derives its name, it contains about 5,800 inhabitants and 2,353 acres of land; in the Deanery of Winchcomb, Archdeaconry of Gloucester, Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, hundred of Tewkesbury, on the banks of the Avon, near the confluence with the Severn, and between the small rivers Carron and Swilgate which are feeders of the Avon; it is about nine miles from Cheltenham by road or rail; if we go thither by rail we use the Midland railway, if by road we proceed till we arrive at Combe Hill and then turn to the right. The history of Tewkesbury carries us back to Saxon times; the first lords of the manor and founders of the town were two Saxon dukes of Mercia Dodo and Odo; the present lord of the manor is John Martin, Esq., of Ledbury.

The borough since the passing of the last Reform Act, sends but one member to Parliament, formerly it sent two: the present member is Captain Price. The corporate body consists of a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve common councillors; the manufacture of hosiery, brewing and malting are carried on here. Though many have been pulled down, there are yet several fine old houses left which makes the visit to Tewkesbury one of interest. The neighbourhood of Tewkesbury is liable to be inundated, hence one of the causes of its stationary character. The Abbey church, dedicated to Saint Mary, was originally founded in 715 and exhibits some of the finest specimens of architecture in the Norman and decorated styles; it consists of nave, choir, transept, and several chapels, with north and south aisles, in length from east to west it is 300 feet, the transept being 120 feet in length, the height 66 feet, 70 feet wide in the choir, 100 feet at the west front, and the tower 152 feet high. The living is a vicarage, valued at £400 per annum with residence, in the incumbency of the Rev. Charles Greenall Davies, M.A., honorary canon of Gloucester and rural dean, in the patronage of the Lord Chancellor. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected by public sub-borough by prescription from an early date, and the municipal body consists of two bailiffs and ten burgesses, who are appointed at the court leet of the lord of the manor: their jurisdiction is very limited, and the offices may be considered as nearly obsolete, the principal governing body now being the county magistrates, who hold petty sessions at the Town-hall on the last Friday in each month. The Town-hall, in the centre of the town, is a handsome Elizabethan edifice lately rebuilt. The lord of the manor is John Coucher Dent, Esq. The vicarage, with the chapelry of Gretton annexed, is valued at £400 per annum with residence, in the incumbency of the Rev. Robert Noble Jackson, M.A., and the patronage of Lord Sudeley. The church is a large handsome edifice in the Perpendicular style, dedicated to Saint Peter, and was erected by the parishioners, assisted by Ralph, Lord Boteler, Baron of Sudeley, in the reign of Henry VI. It consists of nave, chancel, north and south aisles, with an embattled tower containing a peal of six bells. The church has recently been thoroughly restored, at an expense of £3,000. There is also a beautiful church at Sudeley Castle, and the Rev. R. N. Jackson is the Rector. There is an excellent National school for children of both sexes, with residence for the master; also an Infant school holding 150, and the use of a Reading-room, provided at the cost of W. Smith, Esq. Lady Chandos, in the reign of James I., founded a Grammar School for fourteen boys, natives of the town, to which the Trustees have added ten more as supernumeraries, who enter on their foundation in their turn. The Trustees are now building a new school, calculated to hold about 70 boys. The Master is Mr. T. C. Webb. The King's School for ten boys, which was founded by Henry VIII., and Townsend's Charity School for seventy children, which was founded in 1683, have been merged by the Trustees into one. The Baptists and Wesleyans have places of worship here; Baptist Minister, Rev. R. Salt; Wesleyan Minister, Rev. T. Evans. Ten alms-houses, for persons in reduced circumstances, five men and five women, poor tradespeople, have been erected out of funds left by John and William Dent, Esqrs., as well as a school for children of both sexes. The market day is on Saturday; a cattle fair is held on the 6th May, and extensive horse fairs on the last Saturday in March and the 28th July, which are attended by dealers from all parts of the kingdom.

GREET is a small hamlet of this parish, about one mile from thence.

GRETTON is a chapelry of this parish two miles north-west. It contains a chapel of ease for the mother church, as well as a National school for children of both sexes. The Wesleyans have a place of worship here.
