"There rolls the deep where grew the tree;
O earth what changes hast thou seen ;
There, where the long street roars, hath been
The stillness of the central sea."

TENNYSON.

CHELTENHAM is a town built upon the sand deposited by the sea that once spread over its great vale. The Tennysons lived for several years in the house now next to the Catholic Church, and there "In Memoriam" was written.

Another change, and now Cheltenham has the reputation of being the highest, the largest, the most populous, the wealthiest and most healthy town in the county. Statements are nothing unless supported by facts and figures ; the appointment of a meteorologist was therefore absolutely necessary to protect us from our rivals statements. The London Express observes, "The climate is equable and temperate to a degree. There is practically complete shelter from the east wind—the number of days on which it is registered being only about six per year—and the prevailing winds blow from the south and south-west. Winds from these quarters usually bring much rain, but Cheltenham again owes much to the hills. The fall of the land to the Severn is 40 feet to the mile in a straight line.

A gentleman writing from Gloucester Lodge, Promenade, remarks : "I have obtained a table of the temperatures of 110 towns calculated for 40 years. In this I find that the six winter months at Cheltenham are only half a degree colder than they are at Bournemouth, an amount inappreciable to our sensations, while the air being less humid than Bournemouth, and the town more sheltered from the east and north-east winds, they actually do not feel so cold here.

"During the six summer months Bournemouth is half a degree hotter than Cheltenham. For two successive years I left Bournemouth and came to Cheltenham in the height of the summer, and on each occasion I felt much cooler here than at Bournemouth. This I accounted for in the following way. The houses in Cheltenham are more substantially built, which keeps the interiors cool, the air is drier, and there is far more shade to be found in the numerous boulevards of this town."

The new ordnance map gives the following heights measured to the centre of the road above sea level :—

	Feet.
Midland Station entrance .. ..	188
Great Western ditto .. ..	191
Queen's Hotel .. ..	202
Gordon Lamp .. ..	223
Lansdown Castle .. ..	182
General Hospital .. ..	218
Pittville Gates .. ..	201
Cheltenham College .. ..	222
Christ Church .. ..	214
Belle Vue Hotel .. ..	210
Bayhill Court .. ..	238
Pittville Circus .. ..	213

The enormous wealth of the town is shown by the report of the probate valuations every year exceeding that of all the rest of the county put together, the amounts for 1903 are—

Cheltenham .. ..	964,000
Gloucester .. ..	317,500
Rest of the County .. ..	593,000

As an educational town Cheltenham's European reputation, as Dean Spencer remarked, will be increased by the Grammar School being made a small university. The Parish Church was built in 1011.

On the 12th of Oct., 803, a Synod Council was held at Clafesho, under the presidency of Archbishop Ethelbard, "to deal with needful matters and many statutes of the whole church," and there a contention arose concerning the right to what the ecclesiastical records call the "food-rents" of a minister of Cheltenham. The disputants were Deneberht, Bishop of Worcester, and Wulfhard, Bishop of Hereford. Cheltenham was then, as, indeed, it continued until the time of Henry VIII., in the Diocese of Worcester, but the food-rent of its church went to the Bishop of Hereford. There is no earlier mention of Cheltenham than in this record—then spelt Ciltanham.

As the prospectus for a large hydropathic establishment is talked of being issued, a few words should be said of its mineral waters, which now belong to the Corporation, who are attempting to revive their general use. The waters consist of strong saline, bitter saline, alkaline saline, and chalybeate waters. They differ materially in their properties, but generally speaking are stronger and more powerful in their action than most waters found in this country and many Continental spas, and may be highly recommended.

The forward policy has been so successful in bringing the town to the front and introducing so many large societies and associations, we hope now we have the proper accommodation in the new Town Hall that still larger bodies may be invited to add to our prosperity.

F. BECKINGSALE & SON,
CHELTENHAM.

CERTIFICATE OF ANALYSIS.

I Hereby Certify that I have submitted to a careful Chemical and Microscopical Analysis specimens of the Royal Cheltenham Sausages manufactured by Messrs. F. Beckingsale and Son, Cheltenham, and I find them to be of superior composition and quality, and to have been skilfully and judiciously prepared from the best materials only. They are delicate and appetising in flavour, and the result of my investigations prove them to have been made from meat of the primest quality only, the inferior and indigestible proportions having been carefully eliminated. I can speak with confidence as to their wholesome digestive and dietetic properties.
