DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT IN CHELTENHAM.

A group of clever Cheltenham Amateurs performed two playlets, entitled "No Class" and "Come Michaelmas," at the King's-hall, Cheltenham, on Tuesday, October 28th, in aid of the Mission to Seamen. "No Class" was of special interest, as it was written by Mr. H. O. Barnett, of Cheltenham. Mr. T. Hannam-Clark (Sidney Collins), Miss Eileen Growse (Mrs. S. Collins), Mr. H. O. Barnett (author-prompter), Miss Sybil Ker (Mrs. Thompson), Miss M. Growse (Ada South).

Mr. Richard Wiggins,

Of Didbrook, who died at his home on Oct. 20, aged 92. His long life of labour had been spent in the service of Mr. Richard James, of Hailes, and his family. He was beloved and respected by all who knew him for his geniality and depth of character.

GREEN & SONS' CLEVER INVENTION.

COUNCILLOR EDWINSON C. GREEN, head of the firm of Green and Sons, gunmakers, Cheltenham and Gloucester, has received many compliments on their patent "Over and Under" gun from experts writing in the chief sporting papers, including the highest authority, The Field. The "Over and Under" barrel type is likely to eventually supersede the ordinary double-barrel arrangement, it being claimed that this arrangement of the barrels, which are one above the other instead of side by side, conduces to much better shooting and decidedly less recoil. The Field, in notes upon a severe test to which the Greens' "O and U" gun was submitted, says "it might

Green model takes high marks. . . The town of Cheltenham may feel proud of its ingenious townsman." This is by no means the first occasion upon which the house of Green and Sons has figured very prominently. Some time ago they beat the Americans on their own ground, and their successes at the last London Field trials were very striking, their guns taking two of the three first prizes. The committee's report at the time said: "Mr. Green distanced all other competitors in all the three classes. His patterns were marvellously regular—a most marvellous performance truly." The Country Gentleman has paid the following tribute to the firm: "Bright outstanding example of practical craftsmen is the firm of Having referred to various complex and mechanical problems which had to be solved in the making of the "O and U" gun, The Field continues: "The solutions arrived at are susceptible to the triple test of appearance, handling properties, and ease of operation. In all these the Edwinson Green and Sons. . . Although the gun examined by us has discharged ten thousand shots, it still worked as smoothly and sweetly as could be wished. . . Generally the Green gun may be commended as one of the best examples of the high-class British gun, and the enterprise and ingenuity of its designers and builders are to be admired."

MR. HENRY SIMMONS,

SUGGESTIONS WORTH NOTING.

THOSE odd scraps of gold and trinkets when melted down would make for you some useful article of jewellery for the cost of workmanship only.

Those treasured bits of Jade, Carbuncles, Pearls, Mosaics or Cameos could with a little ingenuity be mounted as a handsome collarette or bandeau for the hair.

Those old Wedding and Keeper Rings you prize for their associations could be converted into the gem ring of taste or Signet Ring.

Allow us to interest ourselves in your treasures, and you shall have coloured designs, the benefit of our experience and advice free without obligation.

A CYCLONE ON THE COTSWOLDS.

On Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 28th, a small cyclone, about 150 yards wide, swept over Witcombe Park from the south, uprooting trees wholesale, blowing a hay stack away, taking the roof off a barn, and throwing down the wall of the kitchen garden. Our photo shows an orchard in which every tree but one was blown down. It was evidently a part of the same cyclonic disturbance that caused such havoc in South Wales.
