MORE ROMAN FINDS AT BOURTON-ON-THE-WATER

Further excavations at the "Bungalow site," Lansdowne, Bourton-on-the-Water, have led to other interesting relics of the Roman occupation. Five feet from the first wall found is a Roman well, with a depth of 10ft. 6ins., at the bottom of which a half side of a black pottery vessel of Roman make was discovered. The two leaden vessels now in Cheltenham Museum were found on the wall in the top angle, just between where Miss Donovan, who is conducting the excavation, and Mr. Lawrence, the owner of the site, are standing. Inset are two Harrow masters, Mr. D. C. Whimster and Mr. R. Bulmer, and an ex-Harrow boy, Mr. F. E. Crossley, who are assisting Miss Donovan.

OPENING OF THE CHELTENHAM BOWLING SEASON

The Cheltenham Bowling Club opened their season on Saturday with a match between the President's team and Captain's team. 1.—Members at the opening. The cup in front is the Boulton Memorial Cup, recently given by Mrs. Boulton in memory of the late Mr. T. D. Boulton. 2.—The President's rink. 3.—The captain, Mr. H. Singleton, bowling the first wood of the season.

SEVERE AND SUCCESSFUL TEST OF A BEDFORD-BAICO ON BIRDLIP HILL

The Cheltenham Corporation have recently ordered two Bedford-Baico 4-ton vehicles for various haulage purposes, and in order to have a thorough proof of their capability a very severe test was arranged to take place on Birdlip Hill before prominent committee men and officials of the council. Picture No. 1 shows the Bedford-Baico rounding the top bend of the hill (gradient 1 in 5) with lots of power in hand. Picture No. 2 shows it restarting at the Water Trough with a load of no less than 5 tons 3 cwt. Picture No. 3 shows Captain J. H. Trye, R.N., chairman of the Highways Committee, and Mr. G. Gould-Marsland, borough water engineer and surveyor, congratulating Mr. H. B. Poulton, managing partner of Messrs. Haines and Strange, Bedford Distributors, at the conclusion of the most satisfactory test.

AN INNOVATION FOR CHELTENHAM

The first woman chemist to open her own establishment in Cheltenham is Miss Cicely G. Lewis, M.P.S., and her shop is at 16 Swindon Road, Cheltenham, where there is an excellent opening for a business of this description. Miss Lewis is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lewis, and a granddaughter of the late Mr. George C. Holtam, for many years one of Cheltenham's most respected tradesmen. Consequently she has many local connections, and her enterprise will be watched with considerable interest. Miss Lewis is an Old Girl of Pate's Grammar School, and after serving a three years' apprenticeship with Messrs. C. and P. James, Limited, Promenade, proceeded to Merchant Venturers' College, Bristol, from where she passed her examinations. Since then she has held senior and managerial appointments at Birmingham, Cannock, and Swanage.

CROWNING THE CARNIVAL QUEEN IN CHELTENHAM ON WHIT-MONDAY

One of Cheltenham's Whitsun attractions, the crowning of the Carnival Queen, on the Winter Garden green, was a pretty spectacle in the sunshine of a May morning, and a large crowd assembled to watch it and the accompanying dancing.

- 1.—A view of the crowd, showing the bandstand and the Queen's Hotel in distance.
- 2.—The Queen, Miss Irene Henderson, receiving her attendants preparatory to being crowned.
- 3.—The Mayoress (Mrs. E. L. Ward) receiving a bouquet from one of the little attendants, after crowning the Carnival Queen.
- 4.—Another section of the crowd present.

FELLING THE ELECTRI CITY WORKS CHIMNEY

For over a week men from a Nottingham firm of steeplejacks and chimney-fellers cut away at the base of the huge chimney at the electric light works in Arle-road, Cheltenham, which had been condemned. It was hourly expected to fall from Friday night, and hundreds of people watched the work from a splendid point of vantage on the Tewkesbury-road bridge and approaches, right through the Whitsun holidays. So well had it been built, however, that it did not succumb until nearly ten o'clock on Whit-Monday night, when practically every watcher had gone home disappointed.

- 1.—The chimney from the base.
- 2.—An unusual view of the chimney (the one on the left) from the air. It was taken from one of the planes of Aviation Developments, Ltd., who were giving flights round the chimney, by one of our staff photographers.
- 3 and 6.—The waiting crowd on Tewkesbury-road bridge.
- 4.—The chimney, taken from the base after its fall.
- 5.—The mass of bricks smashed up as they fell (looking towards base).
